J. S. CHAKRAVARTI,
Comptroller.

Circular No. 6—P. W., dated 23rd February 1909.

To—All Executive Engineers, Sanitary Engineer, Chief Electrical Engineer and all Civil Officers.

In connection with Savings Bank Deposits of securities taken from subordinates, it has been noticed that when, at the request of the party, the amount of interest is paid to him, the transaction relating thereto is passed through the Cash Book bringing the amount on the receipt side as "Deposits, Ordinary" and charging it off on the payments side as "Payments into Treasury." The amount is then paid to the party by cheque and debited to Deposits, Ordinary. This procedure being irregular, the Comptroller has the honor to request that the following procedure may be followed in future:—

(1) Interest should be allowed to be drawn by the depositors every year and in doing so, the depositor should make his own arrangements for receiving it when due, direct from the Savings Bank, on a letter from the officer who received the deposit authorising the Savings Bank to pay it. The Pass Book should be sent direct to the Savings Bank with the intimation of such permission having been granted. The transaction should not pass through the Government accounts.

(2) When an account is, however, finally closed by giving the amount back to the party, it should be drawn from the Savings Bank and brought on to deposits, the same procedure as in the case of other miscellaneous receipts being followed in adjustment.

(3) When the amount has to be adjusted to the credit of Government, it should be done by Book Transfer.
